Crime-scene evidence and online writings lead investigators to think the suspect linked to the mailed-body-parts case has fled Canada. Montreal police say the horrifying killing, possibly filmed and posted online, is unprecedented. "I can't recall another case like that in Montreal," said Cmdr. Ian Lafrenière, Montreal police. Suspect in body-parts case fled Canada, police say

On Interpol's Most Wanted list. Victim believed to be missing person cops had been looking for

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

Montreal police say crime-scene evidence suggests a man suspected of dismembering a human body and mailing parts of it from Montreal to Ottawa has fled Canada.

The countrywide arrest warrant for Luka Rocco Magnotta, 29, expanded Thursday after his photo and description appeared on Interpol's Most Wanted list.

Montreal police Cmdr. Ian Lafrenière would not confirm or deny reports that Magnotta may have headed to Europe.

"We do have some evidence that we found on the scene and also that person left a note on a website (describing) how to leave without getting caught," said Lafrenière.

An article on digitaljournal.com titled "How to completely disappear and never be found" is penned by someone of the same name as Magnotta explaining how to leave without a trace using a six-step method.

"Cut personal ties with everyone who knows you," the article reads.

It goes on to say, "The most important thing to remember here is to accomplish this slowly: pull out too abruptly and your friends and associates will become immediately suspicious."

Meanwhile, police are trying to yank videos off of the Internet — videos they believe show the suspect committing the murder and other perverse acts to the body.

Police are still investigating the video, but Lafrenière said they "have no reason to doubt its authenticity."

Rented by suspect

Inside Apt. 208

Residents of a low-rent Montreal apartment where Luka Rocco Magnotta rented a second-floor bachelor unit squeezed in for a glimpse Wednesday.

Among them was Kelly, the woman tasked with tidying it. "I can't believe I'm cleaning this tomorrow, man," said the handywoman who has been renovating the building for the last two months. She didn't give her last name.

She pointed to a crumpled heap. It included a pink bed sheet soaked with what appeared to be a huge blood stain. It lay beside a purple, blood-streaked shower curtain.

She held each up to give everyone a look and gagged as a rancid stench emanated. "Oh, God, what a smell," she said.

Watching gory videos no different than staring at car accident: Prof.

An online video that may depict the murder and dismemberment of a Montreal man is horrifying, but the written comments below it are just as appalling.

One person who commented on the video titled 1 lunatic, 1 ice pick wrote, "it was still pretty top notch, my favorite kill vid to date."

Others exchanged casual critiques of the video's soundtrack and its apparent lack of blood.

Like many people, Carleton University sociology professor Craig McFarlane doesn't plan on watching the video associated with the mailed-body-parts investigation in Montreal.

The media attention the video has received can arouse curiosity and someone who normally wouldn't visit a gore site might be tempted to explore it. McFarlane said those people are only engaging in their own natural curiosity to see violence and gore.

"This is no different than rubbernecking at a car accident, getting your lawn chair out to watch your neighbour's house burn down, or standing around stupidly outside the yellow police tape at murder scenes hoping to catch a glimpse of something," said McFarlane.

"The problem for most people is that many of them find out that they do, in fact, enjoy violence and gore."

The fascination with brutality and gore, he said, is linked to the fact humans evolved with a great deal of violence.

"We can't easily shed this legacy of violence," said McFarlane, adding that the probability of witnessing violence has dropped considerably over the past few centuries. "It isn't a coincidence that the near-disappearance of real violence coincides with the appearance of imaginary violence."

The Game of Thrones television series and films like Hostel are on a whole different level than what is viewed — and glorified — on some gore sites.

A poster for violent horror movie Hostel: Part II typifies the fictional depiction of gore. A local sociology professor says people who watch non-fictional gore videos are responding to natural human curiosity.
JAE C. HONG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Based on the comments on the dismemberment video, gore is not for everyone, though. "I've been a regular of this site and this is the first time I was like shocked by what I saw," wrote one commenter.

Unexpected shuttering of women's shelter puts community at risk: Staff

Nelson House. Closure comes as Ottawa's shelters are bursting at seams, counsellor says

GRAHAM LANKTREE
graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

Staff at a women's shelter shuttered unexpectedly last Friday say they have no indication when it will reopen and are working to put pressure on the organization's board to resume services.

"The reason they gave us for closing is that it's a health-and-safety issue," said Keri Lewis, a women's counsellor at the Nelson House shelter.

Without warning, three board members visited the shelter early last Friday, said Lewis, and told staff that seven women and six children staying there needed to be transferred to space in any of the city's four other shelters.

Lewis said the organization hasn't had an executive director for most of the past year and that staff have been placed on paid administrative leave while the board carries out a financial viability study.

"We knew they were concerned about finances, but they haven't shared the numbers with us," Lewis said. "Our funding has not decreased and they could do a financial viability study with the doors open."

Nelson House's website says the shelter is closed temporarily. A representative from the organization was not available for comment Thursday morning.

"I would hate for a woman to stay in a dangerous situation for lack of space," said Lewis.

According to Statistics Canada, twice as many women as men were beaten by their partners in 2004.

And from 1984 to the end of the past decade, first-degree murder charges for men accused of killing their spouses jumped 25 per cent.

Gatineau drug bust one of biggest in city's history

An early-morning drug bust in Gatineau and Cantley netted 28 arrests and is one of the largest in the city's history, according to Gatineau police spokesperson Const. Pierre Lanthier. GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

Gatineau police say they struck a major blow against drug traffickers in one of the biggest narcotics busts in the city's history.

At 4 a.m. Thursday, police arrested 28 people in raids targeting 20 homes in the Outaouais region as part of Operation Avalanche.

Among the items seized were a dozen luxury cars including a Lincoln Navigator, Porsche Cayenne and Mercedes C250, as well as weapons and quantities of various drugs such as speed, cocaine, ecstasy, steroids, crack and others police said they were still analyzing.

"They were mostly trafficking in the Outaouais region," said Gatineau police spokesperson Const. Pierre Lanthier. The raids went smoothly and there was no resistance, he said, thanks to tactical groups from three local police forces and the RCMP.

"We arrested a major figure and leading players of this group," Lanthier said.

Lanthier said police anticipated more arrests related to the bust Friday and that the investigation is ongoing. Police began the investigation in September 2011.

Those arrested are not tied to motorcycle or street gangs, but some do have ties to organized crime, he said.

"A lot of money and a lot of things were seized," he said when asked the cash value of confiscated items.

Arrests

- Among those arrested were 20 men and eight women who ranged in age from 22 to 72.

Police continue to sift through evidence and were still processing those arrested Thursday afternoon. Most of the charges in the case relate to drug trafficking. GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

Members of the Ottawa Gaels Gaelic football club give Metro a demonstration of their sport. "It's such a fast-paced game, and you have to be on your toes constantly," says player Laura Clarke, right. STEVE COLLINS/METRO

Soccer plus rugby played in the style of Emerald Isle

Gaelic football. Never heard of it? Believe it or not, it's been played in Ottawa since 1975

STEVE COLLINS
ottawa@metronews.ca

What sport is it, anyway?

"We do get an awful lot of funny looks, but you do get a lot of interested people who stop and see what's going on. It's very unusual, and trying to explain it to people is a bit difficult. You play on a pitch with goal posts that look like rugby goal posts but you use a ball that's round like a soccer ball, but you can use your hands like you can in rugby."

Ciaran Ryan, Ottawa Gaels vice-chairman

You might mistake it for one of the countless games of soccer played on fields across Ottawa until the first time a player catches the ball with his hands.

It's Gaelic football, and the Ottawa Gaels have been keeping Ireland's own "beautiful game" alive here since 1975.

"As an Irishman, I grew up with the sport," said the Gaels' Ciaran Ryan, who immigrated to Canada a little under three years ago.

"We played it in school. Every parish back home has its team, so I was involved in my team from probably eight, nine years of age."

Laura Clarke, another recent arrival to Canada who plays on the Gaels' ladies' team, also played as a girl back in Ireland, but she says the game is easy for all sorts of athletes to pick up.

"You can use your soccer kick in Gaelic football. If you're a basketball player, you can also use that with your bounce. If you're from volleyball you use your hand pass, so it's the same," she said.

The game, Clarke added, also provides a little taste of home.

"It keeps us in contact with Ireland," she said. "It keeps a piece of it here with us."

Spartan Race just appetizer for local women headed for Death Race

Brutal. Death Race contestants run, swim, carry heavy loads, plus face surprise mental and physical challenges — few even finish

ottawa@metronews.ca

When a race's website is youmaydie.com, it's likely to attract a certain kind of competitor.

Meet Ottawa's Leyla Di Cori and Morgan McKay, the only Canadian women out of 250 contestants signed up for the annual Spartan Death Race in Pittsfield, Vt., a 40-mile gauntlet of physical obstacles and mental puzzles that takes 48 hours on almost no sleep to complete. Less than 10 per cent are expected to reach the finish line, although nobody's ever actually died.

Di Cori, 33, a self-described "gym rat" and half-marathon enthusiast, has been running Spartan races — obstacle courses for the hardcore starting at five-km — for about a year.

"There's a lot of mud involved," she says of the obstacles. "There's a lot of mud crawling, barbed wire, climbing walls that are up to eight feet tall, rope climbing, balance beams, cargo nets, monkey bars that are quite elevated, mud pits."

The Death Race, to be held June 15, is the toughest challenge the extreme sport offers, and it's challenge that Di Cori craves.

"We set our own limits and when you are pushed beyond them, there's something that happens within." She said. "I can't really describe it, but there's certainly this kind of euphoria."

Ottawa's Spartan Race

- When: Saturday June 2 & Sunday June 3
- Distance: It's a five-km race, fastest time should be around 30 minutes. Slowest times will be over an hour.
- Start times: Heats of up to 250 people will leave at the following times 10 a.m., 10.30 a.m., 11 a.m., 11.30 a.m., 12 p.m., 12.30 p.m. and 1 p.m.
- What is it? Go to spartanrace.com/ottawa for more details to see clips of the obstacle race.

Fringe. Tickets for the 2012 Ottawa Fringe Festival (June 14 to 24) go on sale Friday. Go to ottawafringe.com for details

ottawa@metronews.ca

With the clock ticking down to 10 days of wild, unpredictable, slightly mad performances at the Ottawa Fringe Festival, craziness behind the scenes is also ramping up.

“It’s absolutely insane how essentially 11 and a half months of preparation all just kind of gets dumped into our tiny office in these last two weeks,” said Natalie Joy Quesnel, the festival’s executive producer.

The most striking characteristic of this year’s lineup, Quesnel said, is its diversity.

“We have a lot of musicals, a lot of dance and movement-based pieces and also a lot of clown and bouffant-style pieces, which is kind of a major trend this year that we’re noticing,” she said.

New York’s Martin Dockery, a staple at many fringe festivals, makes his debut in Ottawa this year with his latest show, Wanderlust.

“He is a super-rapid-fire solo performer,” Quesnel said. “It leaves you as an audience member kind of breathless to keep up, but in a thoroughly exhilarating kind of way.”

Baghdad. Series of bombings mark deadliest day in over a month

A series of bombings in the Iraqi capital struck a crowded restaurant, a police patrol and several other targets on Thursday, killing 12 people and wounding 29 in the bloodiest day in Baghdad in more than a month, police and hospital medics said.

Violence has fallen in Iraq since a wave of sectarian bloodshed in 2006 and 2007, but insurgents carry out frequent attacks on security forces and civilians in an attempt to undermine the Shiite-led government.

In northwest Baghdad, a parked car exploded outside a crowded restaurant in the Shiite neighbourhood of Shula, killing eight people and wounding 13, police officials said.

Naseer Ali, owner of a grocery shop in Shula, said he was about 150 metres from the restaurant when the blast went off. Ali said he and other witnesses rushed to help the victims until the ambulances arrived.

"I was in my shop when I heard a powerful explosion and everybody rushed to the explosion site," he said. "Part of the restaurant was damaged and the windows of the nearby shops were shattered. We saw several wounded people screaming for help."

Ali said he is worried the level of violence in Baghdad will return to what it was several years ago, in part because of the growing sectarian divide underlying a months-long paralysis of Iraq's national unity government.

Elsewhere in Baghdad, a parked car blew up near the home of Jamal-Din Mohammed, an adviser to Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, killing a civilian and wounding four people, including two guards protecting Mohammed's house.

Earlier Thursday, explosions hit two adjacent homes of Baghdad policemen in the predominantly Sunni neighbourhood of Amariyah, killing two and wounding nine people, among them three children.

Syria blames rebel fighters for massacre

Differing accounts. Witnesses, UN blame pro-Assad gunmen

Syria on Thursday blamed up to 800 rebel fighters for the massacre in central Syria last week that killed more than 100 people, nearly half of them children, in its most comprehensive explanation to date of the bloodshed.

The narrative starkly contradicted accounts of witnesses who blamed "shabiha" or the shadowy gunmen who operate on behalf of President Bashar Assad's regime. The UN also said it had strong suspicions those pro-regime gunmen were responsible for much of the carnage on Friday in a cluster of villages known as Houla.

Facing international outrage over the killings, Damascus launched its own investigation into the deaths and announced that special prayers for the victims would be held at mosques across the country on Friday. The UN chief warned of civil war and pleaded with the regime to stop its attacks.

At a news conference Thursday, Qassem Jamal Suleiman, who headed the government's investigation into the massacre, categorically denied any regime role. He said hundreds of rebel gunmen carried out the slaughter after launching a co-ordinated attack on five security checkpoints.

The aim, he said, was to frame the government and to ignite sectarian strife in Syria.

Verdict in Mubarak trial could lead to unrest

Guilty or not, Saturday's verdict in Hosni Mubarak's trial will likely deepen Egypt's polarization. Political tensions are already simmering in a heated runoff for president pitting the ousted leader's last prime minister against an Islamist from a group that the old regime repeatedly cracked down.

The 84-year-old Mubarak, the first Arab leader to be tried by his own people, faces charges of complicity in the killing of some 900 protesters during last year's uprising that forced him from power.

If convicted, he could face the death penalty. He also faced separate corruption charges along with his two sons — one-time heir apparent Gamal and wealthy businessman Alaa — and a family friend who is on the run.

A vendor stands in front of graffiti of president Hosni Mubarak. AMR NABIL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We are so eagerly awaiting the verdict," said George Ishaq, who gained nationwide fame as a vocal critic of Mubarak's rule. "An innocent verdict will trigger a horrific reaction."

His trial mesmerized the nation, with images of him lying on a hospital gurney inside a defendants' cage of iron bars and barbed wire taken by most Egyptians to symbolize both their triumph over tyranny and the humiliation of a dictator who ruled for close to 30 years.

Mubarak loyalists frequently fought with relatives of dead protesters outside the court, a lecture hall in a police academy once named after him. Lawyers seeking damage for the victims' families, as well as publicity, occasionally chanted slogans against him in court.

Pregnant mother's move not abduction: Court

Ruling overturned.
Ontario Court of Appeal says case should be decided in California, where mother and child live

A child-custody dispute involving a new mother who moved to California when she was seven months pregnant should be decided in the U.S. state rather than in Ontario, the province's top court ruled Thursday in a case closely watched by women's-rights activists.

The Appeal Court rejected the findings of a lower-court judge, who had found the circumstances of the move "analogous to abduction" and decided Ontario courts should have jurisdiction even though the child had never lived in Canada.

In overturning the earlier ruling, the appellate judges found Ontario Superior Court Justice Frances Kiteley had made several errors, including her finding the baby was in need of the court's protection.

"The circumstances of this case ... simply do not give rise to any protection concern," the Appeal Court ruling states.

According to court documents, Mojdeh Razi, 36, an interior designer, was seven months pregnant when she left Toronto for California last November saying she was going to visit family.

After baby Audrey was born in mid-January, the father, waste-management entrepreneur Patrick Dovigi, 32, started custody and access proceedings in Ontario Superior Court.

Dovigi, a one-time NHL-drafted goalie, argued Ontario should have jurisdiction, saying he always believed Razi would be returning and Audrey would be parented in the province. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle still in state of shock over killings

City mourns. Slaying frays nerves in city jittery from nearly two dozen homicides this year thus far

Father's statement

"I just hope they understand he wasn't a monster out to kill people." Walter Stawicki, father of the alleged gunman

Someone inside an artsy cafe where a gunman opened fire threw stools at the assailant during a shooting rampage police described as "callous, horrific and cold," a move that allowed others to run to safety.

Ian Lee Stawicki was armed with two .45-calibre handguns and began shooting Wednesday morning at Cafe Racer, killing four people. Police said he fled and later killed a female motorist, taking off with her SUV.

Stawicki later killed himself as police closed in.

Police said more could have been injured or even killed at the cafe were it not for the actions of the man, whom they did not identify. They did not say whether he was a patron or an employee.

"The hero picked up a stool and threw it at the suspect. Hit him. Picked up another stool, as the suspect is shooting and now pointing (a gun) at him and hits him with another stool," Assistant Chief Jim Pugel said.

"During that time, two or possibly three people made their escape," he said, adding, "He saved three lives."

The slayings further frayed nerves in an already jittery city that has seen 21 homicides so far this year, as many as Seattle had in all of 2011. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadians elimnated at Scripps spelling bee

Tense competition. Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford and Jennifer Mong of St. John's tripped up during semifinal action in Maryland

Canada's Jennifer Mong, 12, smiles after spelling her word "berserker" correctly during the National Spelling Bee on Thursday.
EVAN VUCCI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Canadians were eliminated on Thursday from the Scripps National Spelling Bee.

Twelve-year-old Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford, B.C., was tripped up by the word "macropodid" during the nail-biter of a semifinal.

In the next round, Jennifer Mong of St. John's — after nailing the word "lymphopoiesis'' earlier in the day — flubbed the spelling of "vellon" by adding an "e" on the end, concluding her run at the famous spelling bee.

The girls were among 50 competitors to make it to the semifinals following two days of often tense competition that saw spelling-bee officials challenge them with progressively more difficult words as the contest proceeded.

Many of those words, with origins in foreign languages, would confound adult Mensa members, and yet most of the schoolchildren, including Tsai and Mong, approached the microphone with poise, confidence — and no small amount of courage amid the glare of television cameras and a time limit to spell their words.

Canadians have been a strong presence at the Scripps competition for years, and have had several close calls. Nate Gartke and Finola Hackett of Alberta were previous runners-up.

The winner of the spelling bee will take home more than $40,000 US in cash and scholarship money.

This year's competition included schoolkids not just from the U.S. and Canada, but from the Bahamas, China, Ghana, Jamaica, Japan, New Zealand and South Korea.

Watercraft-maker preparing to move assembly to Mexico

Quebec. 500 employees of the Valcourt plant will be affected when the company moves over the next 18 to 36 months

Bombardier Recreational Products Inc. says 500 Quebec employees will be affected by a decision to switch watercraft assembly to Mexico.

The move will take place over the next 18 to 36 months, the company said in a statement released Thursday.

The 500 employees affected at the Valcourt plant will be presented with options including retirement packages or positions within or outside of the company.

The privately held company said existing production capacity in Mexico will be expanded by transferring engines currently being manufactured in Juarez to a new plant.

The new facility is where the assembly of the watercraft will take place.

"Building a global multi-market business is an ongoing process," company president Jose Boisjoli said in the statement.

"To remain a market leader, BRP needs to constantly challenge itself and adapt to change. This is not the first time that we change things at BRP, nor will it be the last.

"While we remain very much committed to our heritage and roots in Valcourt, we must become more flexible to leverage our growth opportunities."

Bombardier Recreational Products Inc. designs, develops, manufactures and distributes motorized recreational vehicles.

Its brands include Ski-Doo snowmobiles and Sea-Doo watercraft and boats.

It employs more than 6,000 people worldwide.

Outsourcing

Bombardier Recreational Products will also assign North American distribution of its parts, accessories and clothing to a logistics provider.

- The company said the moves will enable it to become more competitive and free up space on the main assembly line in Valcourt, Que., to increase production of its "roadster-type" vehicles.

MyFord app to keep owners connected to vehicles

Ford Focus Electric CONTRIBUTED/FORD

For electric-vehicle (EV) owners who can't get enough of their cars, the MyFord Mobile app will now let users remotely control their car settings and stay connected halfway across the world.

Car owners can control car temperature, seat warmers, radio stations and even start charging their electric vehicle's battery with their smartphones.

"It's such a unique opportunity that you could communicate with your car from anywhere in the world that it just made sense," said Mark van Tol, Ford Motor Company of Canada's communications manager.

MyFord Mobile uses an on-board wireless module that allows the car to communicate off-board through standard cellular technology.

And since electric cars are all about going green, so is the app.

It offers functions that are both fun and practical for its users. EV owners can track their driving practices and see how eco-friendly they are on the road. The app rates car owners from "zen" to "zippy" and offers figures to show how much money and CO2 emissions they've saved by driving electric.

For those concerned about conserving their battery life, MyFord Mobile's option of allowing users to preheat and cool their cars means that instead of draining the battery, they could instead use electricity from the grid as long as they're already plugged in.

PHOEBE HO/FOR METRO

Features

The app comes with a list of other features, like remotely unlocking and locking doors, using a built-in GPS system to locate the car, locating charging stations in the area, and much more.

- "It's just a great way to communicate with your vehicle and really turn it into something more than a car," said van Tol.

Tropicana. Lawsuits slam 'all natural' claims

Orange-juice maker Tropicana markets its brand as fresh from the grove, but a series of lawsuits across the U.S. claim the company's juice is so heavily processed it shouldn't be called "natural."

In approximately 20 lawsuits lawyers claim the company adds chemically engineered "flavour packs" to its juice, making it taste the same year-round. On Thursday, lawyers came together in Washington to argue before a panel of judges about where the lawsuits should be heard as a group.

Tropicana declined to comment but said in a statement that it is committed to full compliance with labelling laws and to producing "great-tasting 100 per cent orange juice."

The orange juice lawsuits are just the latest disputes over "all natural" claims. Over the past several years, a number of major national brands have been attacked for what consumers have called deceptive labelling. Tostitos, SunChips, Snapple and Ben & Jerry's ice cream have all faced similar attacks.

The lawsuits have become common enough that the Grocery Manufacturers Association, which represents more than 300 food and beverage makers, had a panel that discussed the topic as part of a conference in February. Lawyers representing food and beverage companies have told their clients to be wary. Part of the problem, lawyers agree, is that consumers are looking for healthier products, and companies have responded by creating and branding their products as "all natural."

The Food and Drug Administration, the agency that oversees packaged-food labelling in the United States, has no definition of what counts as "natural." As long as a food labelled "natural" doesn't contain added colour, artificial flavour or synthetic substances, the agency doesn't object.

The world is having a very stressful week. All kinds of nerve-racking stuff going on, starting with:

1 Mr. Dahmer goes to Ottawa? Gay-porn star Luka Rocco Magnotta allegedly tortures kittens, slices up a naked man and sends the body parts in the mail to various places, including Parliament Hill. Yikes.

2 National shame. It's another Stanley Cup and, once again, no Canadian teams are involved. So, as we stand with our noses pressed to the glass, we ask: Who is Canada's team? The Los Angeles Kings or the New Joisey Devils?

3 Like, oops. On network TV, Kathie Lee Gifford congratulates Martin Short for his long, happy marriage. The only problem is, his wife died two years ago. Then she apologizes on Twitter, albeit to the wrong Twitter handle.

4 What's your kid doing today? A 16-year-old kid in Germany has solved a 300-year-old math puzzle that stumped Isaac Newton and everyone else since. Thanks to Shouryya Ray, there is now a way to calculate the path of a projectile under gravity and subject to air resistance. Well, it kept me up at night.

5 God saves the Queen, in perpetuity. Her Majesty's a pretty nice woman, and she'll be floating down the Thames in a barge on Sunday to mark the 60th year of her reign over us. No word on whether the corgis will follow in the royal dinghy.

6 Hair-brained theme. Donald Trump won't let it go. He still says Barack Obama wasn't born in the U.S., even though the president has released his detailed Hawaiian birth certificate. The question remains: What planet is The Donald from? And why doesn't it have decent barbers?

7 Speaking of outer space. The first private space flight is a success as the SpaceX Dragon splashes down in the Pacific. Next mission: Send The Donald back to Mars.

8 A New York-nanny state of mind. N.Y.C. Mayor Michael Bloomberg wants to ban any sugary drinks over 16 ounces across the five boroughs, because they're bad for you. Using that logic, he should ban Donald Trump. He's fired.

9 This just in: The European Union appears to be crumbling before our eyes. Spain, Italy, Greece and Ireland are seriously considering abandoning the euro and restoring the peseta, lira, drachma and punt, respectively. The Irish, at least, have it right.

Um, excuse me, Donald, do you have a birth certificate for that growth on your head? Looks like it might be extraterrestrial. GETTY IMAGES

Bullfighting

Matador (El Juli) on the horns

This was a scary moment for one of Spain's most celebrated bullfighters. Julian (El Juli) Lopez was thrown in the air and then gored in the stomach by a bull at a festival in the town of Aranjuez this week. After losing consciousness, Lopez returned to finish the fight and was carried off at the finish by spectators.

Bullfighting in Spain

- Pamplona. Home of the famous Running of the Bulls where townsfolk run ahead of bulls, which are then used in fights.
- Madrid. One of the most popular cities for bullfights. Spain's capital has two major venues, which can hold 20,000 spectators.
- Barcelona. Represents the modern distaste for bloodsports — it banned bullfighting in 2010.

Golden boy

The ringmaster, from the age of 9

Lopez, 29, has had a remarkable career. He was training with bulls at the age of nine and fought in Mexico at 14 to avoid Spain's law against underage matadors. He became the highest-paid bullfighter in history at 17 and has flourished since. Footage of his fights have appeared in Shakira's videos.

Comeback

"I took a beating but I'm fine, thanks for all your support it has made me better."

Matador Julian Lopez reassures his supporters on Twitter.
This was not El Juli's first scare in the bullring and he has become known for his swift recoveries. In 2010 he was hospitalized after being gored in the scrotum.

The minimum weight in kilograms for a bull to be used in traditional Spanish bullfighting. The matador would be expected to take on several during a day of fights.

Kristen Stewart is more tomboy than fierce rebel queen in Snow White and the Huntsman. HANDOUT

Famous fairy tale goes goth

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Snow White and The Huntsman. Charlize Theron's shrieking performance usurps Kristen Stewart's turn as Snow White Richard: Chris, this movie plays like the love child of the Grimm Brothers and The Hobbit. It is dark in tone and in look with just a few hi ho ho's provided by the Seven Dwarfs. That'll be my last bad Snow White joke, I promise. The first hour is a gothic fairy tale, the second hour more an action movie, but through it all Theron's bug-eyed Grand Guiginol performance remains constant. Was she too over the top, or just over the top?

Chris: One scream of rage would have been over the top. By the time she turned into a melting puddle of dying, tar-soaked crows, I realized that both the dark tone of the film and Charlize's shrieking vampire queen performance were more Hammer Horror than Walt Disney... and I was in deep, of course. But what did you think of Stewart's Snow White?

RC: K Stew is the movie's big draw, marquee wise, and while she holds down the fort, I found that unless she was on horseback, or staring down a troll, I wasn't that interested in her performance. The talky bits aren't nearly as interesting as the yelling bits (thanks to Charlize's unhinged performance) or the action sequences. Unfortunately, she is saddled with most of the dialogue, and it is the last interesting thing about the movie.

CA: Stewart was a fantastic Joan Jett. Not so much earth goddess/warrior queen but whatever, I forgave her slight, tomboyish presence when so many operatic visuals were exploding around her. Strangely, however, I found that some of my favourite moments in the film were the quiet ones; the sequences of technicolour fairy forests and character moments where — alarmingly — you actually empathized with Theron's soul-sucking monster. What do you think Stewart's TWI-hard fanbase will think?

RC: She couldn't muster the fanpires for The Runaways but this time around will be different, I think. Her version of Snow White has much in common with the elements that appeal to the Twilight fans. There's no werewolves or vampires, but there is true love, fantasy and even the sweeping crane landscape shots are reminiscent of her best-known films.

CA: Well, she certainly has a better shot at pleasing her fanbase with this lush gothic fantasy than her sparkly paramour Pattinson does getting a five-minute prostate exam in Cronenberg's Cosmopolis, that's for sure.... but we'll save that for another day.

Synopsis

In this twist on a familiar fairy tale, Charlize Theron is Ravenna, an evil queen so obsessed with being the fairest in the land she condemns the dead king's lovely daughter, Snow White (Kristen Stewart), to a lifetime of solitude and captivity. When the queen's mirror tells her that Ms. White will one day reclaim the throne, Ravenna does what any evil monarch would do. She decides to eat Snow's still beating heart, thereby ensuring immortality and the throne. Chris Alexander sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

Starbuck creators win prize

The two creators of Quebec's fertility comedy Starbuck have each won a $20,000 prize from Telefilm Canada. On Wednesday, director Ken Scott and his co-writer Martin Petit landed the 2011 Guichet d'Or award. The annual honour goes to the Canuck director and writer of a Canadian French-language feature film with the highest-grossing domestic box-office sales during the previous year. In 2011, Starbuck took in more than $3.5 million at the Canadian box office, according to Telefilm Canada. Steven Spielberg's DreamWorks Studios announced last month it's revamping the franco-phone film with a new script set in New York.

Drama

Keyhole

Director. Guy Maddin

Stars. Jason Patric, Isabella Rossellini

Canadian surrealist Maddin goes digital (letting go of his usual 16-millimetre trademark) but doesn't sacrifice a shred of his vision in Keyhole, a haunting, visually informed work of bizarre, muted power. Jason Patric (The Lost Boys) stars as Ulysses, a man who must face the horrors and ghosts of his past inside the confines of his own house — including the specter of his long dead wife (played by Maddin's muse Isabella Rossellini). Part expressionist poem, part classic Hollywood, and all Maddin.

Thriller

The Samaritan

Director. David Weaver

Stars. Samuel L. Jackson, Luke Kirby, Ruth Negga

After serving 25 years in prison, Foley (Jackson) wants to leave the con-man's life behind him. But Ethan (Kirby), the son of his former partner, is determined to drag him back into the game — by any means necessary. For a film that revolves around pulling a major con, The Samaritan gets off to a slow start. Though it picks up halfway through with some exciting plot twists, the biggest twist of all might feel a little too familiar to some viewers.

REGAN REID

Drama

Sound of my Voice

Director. Zat Batmanglij

Stars. Brit Marling, Christopher Denham

There's an original, unsettling film inside of Sound of My Voice, which orbits an ethereal cult leader (co-writer Brit Marling) who claims to be from the future. The idea of basing a drama around a charismatic, potentially insane figure is compelling but the film is at once overly convoluted and noticeably thin — its supposedly stunning twists feel tacked on and arbitrary. It's a low-fi science fiction fable that never finds a higher gear.

ADAM NAYMAN

Comedy

Where Do We Go Now?

Director. Nadine Labaki

Stars. Claude Baz Moussawbaa, Leyla Hakim and Nadine Labaki

Caramel's Nadine Labaki co-wrote, directed and stars as a bar owner in a small Middle Eastern town where Christians and Muslims peacefully co-exist. Until now. A teen prank goes wrong, inadvertently launching a holy war that the women try to contain with manipulation, tears, Ukrainian hookers and hashish cookies. It's entertaining but has more mood swings than Cher has costume changes.

ANNE BRODIE

Comedy/Horror

Piranha 3DD

Director. John Gulager

Stars. Danielle Panabaker, David Hasselhoff, Matt Bush

To be honest, Piranha 3DD doesn't take itself very seriously. And so I won't be excoriating some disparaging critical diagnosis or justifying any hopeful merit (for the record there are no merits). Just know that when the producers pitched this low-brow money-grab about a water-park overrun with flesh-eating fish (need I say more?), they likely only had three words for potential investors: blood, boobs and 3D.

Summer movies take over

We've made it through a dismal spring loaded with murderous teens, a massive John Carter flop and dreary vampires. Now it's time to enjoy the blockbusters that, we hope, are guaranteed to please.

HEIDI PATALANO
Metro News

The first half of the year is a notorious dumping ground for studio stinkers — save The Hunger Games, of course. We've suffered enough!

The Avengers was just a tasting of the treats in store over the next three months as things heat up.

First, we take a look at some of the most hotly anticipated films that we've been dying to see since well before the New Year.

June 8: Prometheus

We like to talk about Michael Fassbender quite a bit in this paper because he really is just that awesome. But the main attraction for the film in which he stars as Android David is much larger than just one actor. This highly anticipated film helmed by Alien director Ridley Scott shows what happens when humans in the future travel to a foreign planet to discover their origins.

June 22: Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter

We're not sure how much a camp factor will come into play with this wacky idea of a film, considering serious Broadway veteran Benjamin Walker will play President Lincoln. But the plot summary really is that Abraham Lincoln decides to vanquish those vamps once he realizes they are planning to take over the U.S., so your guess is as good as ours.

July 3: The Amazing Spiderman

Even though there have been a bazillion iterations of Spidey in the last several years, everyone's dying to get a look at this one, portrayed by The Social Network's Andrew Garfield and co-starring his real-life girlfriend Emma Stone as Gwen Stacy.

July 20: The Dark Knight Rises

The final installation of Christopher Nolan's brilliant imagining of Batman has a few tricks up its sleeve, if the spooky trailer is any indication. Tom Hardy is Bane, one of the nastiest villains the Dark Knight has ever encountered. And then there's Anne Hathaway slinking around as the seductively dangerous Selina Kyle.

August 3: The Bourne Legacy

Can Jeremy Renner fill the shoes of Matt Damon in the Bourne series? Starring as Aaron Cross, Renner's first major starring role has a man who must deal with the consequences of Jason Bourne's actions from where The Bourne Ultimatum left off.

When it comes to Prometheus, Ridley Scott fights the geek fight

Prop war. Director talks about arguing over the specifics of space helmets and shoe laces for sci-fi horror flick

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Prometheus opens in theatres next Friday. HANDOUT

You would think that a director of Ridley Scott's stature would find it easier to get what he wants, especially when he's returning to his sci-fi horror roots with Prometheus. But you'd be wrong. As details of the technology within the film's story began to take shape, Scott admits he found himself going to the mat on more than one occasion.

"You think about everything, down to the shoe laces," Scott says. "We even had a big argument about the globular helmets. I was certain that I wanted the fully spherical glass helmet. If I'm in 2083 and I'm going into space, why would I design a helmet that has blind spots?"

And androids, by then, will apparently be indistinguishable from humans. But Scott, who's no stranger to androids thanks to the original Alien, wanted to approach the subject with care. "What was important was the story. There's nothing new about an android. That idea is 100 years old," he says, explaining how this film's android, played by Michael Fassbender, is deployed. "So then, embrace what it is. By embracing it, he becomes that much more interesting because he isn't just part of the ship. He also becomes extremely useful during the story, as it evolves."

Getting technical

Fassbender on androids

A major component of the Alien universe — and of the viral marketing campaign leading up to Prometheus — are the incredibly lifelike android characters. This time out, X-Men: First Class star Michael Fassbender takes on the job as David, which he found to be an interesting challenge. "You want to play with as many of those human traits as possible. You're essentially trying to build a computer that has a physicality to it," he says.

What's in a fairy tale?

Professor Jack Zipes, author of several books on the topic of fairy tales, including this year's release of The Irresistible Fairy Tale, looks at a few classics.

Little Red Ridinghood: "This story raises the issue of rape and violation of a young woman. It raises the question of, who is responsible for the rape when it happens and how can women protect themselves."

Cinderella: "How do parents treat non-biological children? That question of course is still with us today."

Hansel and Gretel: "Here we have the issue of child abuse, child abandonment."

Beauty and the Beast: "Forcing or compelling a young woman ... into marrying the man who is 30 or 40 years older."

Summer albums

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

We're now well into the summer album release season. Here's what's on the horizon this month:

Insane Clown Posse/The Mighty Death Pop! (Out now): The Juggalos will be pleased with what Violent J and Shaggy 2 Dope have turned in for their 12th album. Still no clue insight into how magnets work, however.

Public Image, Ltd/This Is PiL (Out now): Johnny Lydon's crew has just released their first album in 20 years and it's a DIY effort on their own label. Good for the contrarian in all of us.

Beach Boys/That's Why God Made the Radio (Tuesday): This is album 29 and coincides with the band's 50th anniversary. It's also the first album to feature original material in 20 years. Brian Wilson says he was going for a Pet Sounds sound for the record.

Japandroids/Celebration Rock (Tuesday): Will Vancouver's Brian King and David Prowse be 2012's break-out two-piece act? The indie crowds have been all over the first single, The House That Heaven Built. Watch out, Black Keys.

Rush/Clockwork Angels (June 12): Finally! The first song from this album was released on June 1, 2010. Another track, BU2B, was a nightly part of the set list on the last Rush tour. Bonus feature: Sci-fi novelist Kevin J. Anderson is turning the album into a book involving steampunk, anarchists, alchemy and The Watchmaker who controls everything.

Wintersleep/Hello Hum (June 12): There's much anticipation about the Halifax band's fifth album. Hey, Paul McCartney is a fan.

Smashing Pumpkins/Oceania (June 19): After attempting and abandoning a new way of releasing music with his Teargarden by Kaleidyscope project, Billy Corgan returns to a traditional album. But he says that Oceania is really "an album within an album." What?

All that Heaven will allow

The Walkmen. Metro chats to the band's singer about their latest release

PAT HEALY
scene@metronews.ca

Hamilton Leithauser needs a jumpstart. The singer for the Walkmen says his 2000 Ford Escape is an otherwise reliable vehicle, but he left his hazard lights on while visiting a friend and the battery died.

But if Heaven — the new Walkmen album that came out on May 29 — does as well as it seems like it was designed to do, he might not have to be concerned about his Ford for much longer.

Beginning as a buzz band that appeared to be unwillingly lumped in with NYC's leather-clad class of 2002, the band have persevered and watched their cult of believers expand with each of their six original releases. With Heaven, the band seems to be reaching for something more accessible, something that could even lead to Leithauser buying a rock star car like a Bentley.

The last time we spoke we were talking about who the best contemporary band in America was, and I remember you saying it would be a different world if the Walkmen were the biggest contemporary American band.
Now that's true.

But you guys definitely seem like you're aiming for something big with this album.
I think we were happy to make a big record, which is not something we always want to do. By "big" I mean that I hope it's accessible and I hope that people will like it, but I mean more that it's got big songs and big dynamics and big sounds, and that it's really bombastic. But that wasn't even the plan.

How often does that happen with you guys?
Every time.

Really?
Well, every time we've tried to plan, it just ends up pigeonholing us. We just have such trouble writing songs that you sort of take what you can get when you like it. I mean, you work and work and work, but when you say, 'OK, we're going to write all slow songs,' then that's just another limitation that makes it harder. It's hard enough.

This is the first album where you've ever featured a song where it's just your voice and a guitar. ...
Yeah. We were doing that live for a while and that was kind of weird because everybody just walks off the stage and I'm just up there alone. I mean, we're just trying for dynamics. We have the one, Line By Line, which is me and Paul. It's nice to try to vary it up when we can.

Tron: Uprising. Elijah Wood steps into a dangerous virtual world in new Disney live action TV series

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Elijah Wood is jumping feet first into the world of animated series television with Tron: Uprising, a new series that takes place in the time between 1982's Tron and 2010's Tron: Legacy. Of course, it's not necessarily new territory for the actor, who's popped up as a voice in films, TV and video games in the past.

"Over the last number of years, I'm no stranger to voice work in animation, so I'm used to it," Wood says. "But getting a chance to work within the context of a universe I was already familiar with was really fun. It just gave the whole experience a more special quality, I think."

The familiar universe of Tron: Uprising also meant more than just the usual voiceover work, though: "The character happens to be extremely physical, so there's a lot of me standing in front of a microphone, punching and kicking the air, and making myself sound like I'm in all sorts of intense physical scenarios, which is pretty hilarious," Wood says. "I'm sure there's some footage of me, standing there looking like an idiot."

Finding the right voice for Beck was easy, as it turns out, since the show's producers really just wanted Wood. "It was determined right away that it would be my own voice," he says, though he cautions that with secret identities and hush-hush rebellions on the menu, it's never that simple.

"When the character is Tron, or The Renegade, we do change his voice a little bit," Wood explains. "Digitally, they mess with his voice, and I also give it a gravity that Beck doesn't have in his normal Beck mode. The character is split between the two, in a way. Some of those more Tron-Renegade moments definitely have a depth and a gravity to them, and that's fun. It's fun to play around with all of that."

Virtual wars

Tron: Uprising premieres June 23 on Disney XD.

- The plot. Wood plays Beck, a young program who leads a revolution inside the computer world of The Grid.

While Tron: Uprising and his live-action TV series, Wilfred, have kept him busy — along with several film projects — Wood is keeping an open mind when it comes to what's next. "I don't know that I'm ever looking for anything, in particular," Wood admits.

"I'm always intrigued by new challenges and things that I've never done before and new experiences. It sounds so simple, but the primary interest is just something that's good and instills within me some kind of gut feeling that feels like something that I'm passionate and excited about, and there can be multiple variables that can instill that. But, I'm always just looking to do things that I've never done before, primarily."

The world, according to Jane Fonda

JANE FONDA/GETTY IMAGES

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The always outspoken 74-year-old takes on an idealistic aging hippie in her new film, Peace, Love and Misunderstanding.

But Fonda insists that being a hippie was a completely foreign experience for her.

That wasn't all she let us in on.

1. The 1960s

"I lived in France during the 1960s, so my view of the '60s is a more global view. It was a time of tremendous transition for America, but for the world as well. And it wasn't just because of the Vietnam War or the Pill. I'm not a sociologist, so I don't know why it was that almost everywhere in the world there was tumult, but it was. The '60s was about discord and generational splits. When I became an activist in 1970, I missed the '60s. I never was a hippie or anything. I recognize the importance of that decade, having had one leg in the '50s — which I think has been much more idealized as a time of, you know, families were together and everything was well..."

2. She can't stress enough the importance of the Internet

"The technological stuff has changed everything. We can see it overseas even more, with the Arab Spring and so forth. I never used a computer until I was 58. I was married to Ted Turner, and he threw it across the room. He still doesn't use one. I started blogging at 71. Since it was all new to me, suddenly my life became very immediate. I was worried about blogging because I study Zen Buddhism and I meditate and I believe in being in the moment, and this is going to keep me from being in the moment. But what I discovered was that it helped me be in the moment."

3. Kids today don't protest the way they used to

"One of the things that's really interesting is there's no leader (in the Occupy movement).

During the Vietnam War, there were all these organization and they all had leaders — most of them men. I married one. And now there isn't and people get really disturbed by that, but it's really what's so beautiful about it.

It's not ideological, you can't quite get a grip on it, but it's making a difference. Just like that demonstration in Seattle when the WTO met up there. That was in some ways more significant than anything that happened in the '60s."

4. Papa don't preach: She didn't actually learn anything about acting from her dad

"I never could get him to talk to me about acting, ever. I produced On Golden Pond for him, and after our big scene together I still couldn't get him to talk to me about acting. I learned about life from watching his movies — like Grapes of Wrath and 12 Angry Men. It's what made me who I am, the roles he played. I am my dad's daughter and I look like him in many ways, and I'm sure there's things that other people see that I don't. In some ways, I learned more from Katharine Hepburn than my dad."

5. On impressing Katharine Hepburn

"The first thing she ever said to me was, 'I don't like you.' Take the backflip [scene in On Golden Pond]. I had no intention of doing the backflip, so they had a stunt double all set up, and then Hepburn said to me, 'Are you going to do the backflip?' I thought 'oh God, I'm going to have to do it.' My dad couldn't have cared less if I did the backflip myself, but it mattered to her. It took me a month and a half to learn. I'd go out on the raft and do it over and over and over. Finally I made it one day, and I crawled out on the shore and she'd been hiding in the bushes, watching. She came over to me and she said, 'You've taught me to respect you.'"

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Zhang Ziyi

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star accused of prostitution

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star Zhang Ziyi has been accused of earning $110 million by prostituting herself to Chinese government officials and businessmen, according to the Daily Mail. The unsubstantiated claims in Chinese media detail the actress accepting large sums of money from various Beijing officials between 2007 and 2011, with one businessman reportedly forking over $945,000 to sleep with her in 2007. Ziyi has fervently denied the allegations.

Ashton Kutcher and Demi Moore

Ashton and Demi keep it cool in public

Tensions seem to have eased between divorcing couple Demi Moore and Ashton Kutcher, who were spotted together at the birthday party for a Kabbalah instructor, according to People magazine. "They were friendly," a source tells People magazine of the former couple, who arrived separately. "Ashton got up at one point and grabbed coffee in a paper cup for Demi, and they smiled a few times during the program at each other. They seemed to get along and feel comfortable." And apparently that's as good as it's going to get, says another source.

Goin' to the chapel and we're gonna get married

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Drew Barrymore is all set to walk down the aisle with fiancé Will Kopelman Saturday. On Wednesday, the actress was spotted at the Chanel store in Beverly Hills for her final wedding dress fitting.

Along for support was Charlie's Angels costar Cameron Diaz who — in addition to being the kind of girl we imagine has an emergency mini bar in her purse — is a close friend of the couple, and was even clued in before the proposal.

"I knew Drew was getting married before she did!" she tells InStyle UK.

As for Drew, she's apparently overlooked the fact that Cameron is all glowing blonde legs and has given her a front row seat Saturday. "Drew has been leaning on Cameron a lot," a friend tells Us Weekly. "Cameron has been very involved."

Is it just us, or have we seen this movie before? Cameron's going to be late and put her shoes on as she runs down the aisle. Drew's going to wear flowers in her hair and charmingly stumble through her vows while biting her lip. Someone's saucy great aunt should probably feel up a groomsman played by Andy Samberg.

We'll check back in on Monday, Drew — with the big box of Sno Caps.

Pon de replay: Rihanna and Drake back together?

Exes Rihanna and Drake, who dated briefly in 2009, may be giving things another go, if their behaviour at a Miami hotspot on a recent night out is any indication. "Rihanna was all over Drake this weekend," a source tells Us Weekly. "They were holding hands and dancing all close on the dance floor." The pair have remained close friends and frequent collaborators since their brief romance. "We weren't really sure what it was," Rihanna previously said in an interview of her dating Drake. "We didn't want to take it any further. It was a really fragile time in my life..."

Je t'aime: Sparks fly for Mary-Kate Olsen and former French president's brother

Mary-Kate Olsen is reportedly dating former French president Nicolas Sarkozy's younger brother, Olivier Sarkozy, according to Us Weekly. "It's true, they're dating, and she's definitely interested in him," a source says. "MK is constantly complaining about boys not being mature enough for her. She got the kids out of her system. Now being a businesswoman dominates her time, and she is rarely impressed with guys. They are good for each other."

Beer and iced tea?

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.ca

I've never been one to mess with a good thing, especially when it comes to booze. So for me the blend of hops, yeast, water and grain that defines beer is pretty much perfection.

And while the description of beer includes dozens upon dozens of different varieties that come by their taste profiles naturally, the trend toward flavoured brews is taking the industry by storm.

Beer needs them. Sales have seen better days, and industry innovation seems inspired by 1812 rather than 2012, with old school English-style ales the darlings of the aficionado set.

That's what's fun about Coors Light Iced T (12 x 355 ml, $20.31 - $24.99). On the surface it sounds like a mad attempt to attract a summertime audience with a Franken-blend of two totally foreign liquids.

The good news is that in the glass it tastes just like iced tea without losing the subtle malty expression of the suds — and it's a light beer.

This is the first time the Coors Light brand has been extended outside its singular universe and the pitch hits a solid home run.

Grilled Vegetable Napoleons

This recipe serves six. NEWS CANADA

Fire up the grill for easy summer veggies

Grilled Vegetable Napoleons. Lazy summer days are too precious to waste in front of a hot stove

1. Preheat barbecue and set on low. Brush vegetables with olive oil, season with salt and pepper, and grill slowly until tender, turning once.

2. Transfer vegetables to a tray, arranging them in a single layer, and cover tightly with plastic wrap. The vegetables may be grilled a day in advance and refrigerated after cooling. Bring the vegetables back to room temperature before proceeding.

3. Stir together the ricotta, thyme, salt and pepper in a small bowl. Place one slice of eggplant on a lightly oiled grill sheet or foil pan. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the eggplant. Cover with 2 slices of zucchini, 1 slice of onion, 1 slice of mozzarella, 1 slice of tomato, 2 slices of zucchini and 1 slice of onion. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the onion and top with another slice of eggplant. Repeat this procedure with the remaining vegetables to make 5 more stacks.

4. Insert a wooden skewer through the centre of each stack to create a hole from top to bottom. Remove the bottom leaves from each rosemary sprig, leaving one inch of leaves on the top. Insert 1 sprig into the centre hole in each napoleon and return to the barbecue.

5. Heat for about 10 minutes on low, or until mozzarella is melted and vegetables are warmed through.

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 large eggplant, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium zucchinis, cut in 24 slices (1/4" thick)
- 3 large tomatoes, cut in 6 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium red onions, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3/4 cup ricotta cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tsp fresh thyme, chopped
- 1/2 lb mozzarella cheese, sliced 1/4" thick
- 6 sprigs fresh rosemary

Kick-start your tomatoes into high gear

Perfect as an appetizer or side dish for your grilled steak, this delicious recipe for Mozzarellissima Grilled Stuffed Tomatoes is sure to be a hit.

1. Cut a slice of approximately 1 cm off the top of each tomato. With a small knife, cut the inside of the fleshy part of the tomato (do not cut through the bottom). Using a spoon, remove the inside of the tomatoes, leaving about 1 cm of flesh attached to skin. Discard the seeds and juice.

2. Lightly salt the inside of the tomatoes; place them with the open sides downwards on a plate covered with paper towels.

3. Cut zucchini lengthwise into 4 slices. Cut the pepper in half and remove the inside. Also cut the half onion in two. Brush vegetables with olive oil and sprinkle with salt, and cook for 8 to 10 minutes on direct medium heat until they are tender. Remove vegetables from heat.

4. Once cooled, chop the zucchini, onion and pepper into small pieces. Add the mint and a drizzle of olive oil to the vegetables. Mix and season to taste.

5. Stuff the tomatoes with the vegetable mixture and top with the Mozzarellissima. Place on barbecue over medium indirect heat, until cheese is melted and vegetables are heated through (approximately 5 to 6 minutes).

Cooking up a new app

Mennonite cooking goes high tech

Old Order Mennonite cooking meets modern technology with a new app of Edna Staebler's Food That Really Schmecks cookbook. Staebler's hugely successful cookbook extolled the cuisine and lifestyle of Old Order Mennonites. The book was originally published in 1968 and became a classic, selling tens of thousands of copies. New material on the app includes photos and videos of Staebler and the Waterloo Region countryside. Recipes are searchable and users can upload photos and recipe suggestions that will be shared with all users — just like your grandmother's scribbles in the margins of the family cookbook. It's also possible to upload one's own pictures to the recipes.

This digital book is available for free for a limited time on iTunes.

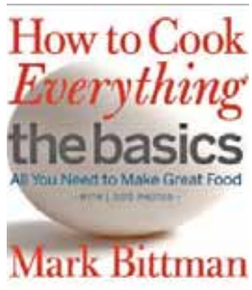
Bittman teaches us The Basics

Classic recipes. Food journalist's latest release is a refresher for seasoned cooks and a bible for newbies in the kitchen

TINA CHADHA
Metro World News in New York



Unlike other cookbooks that sit pretty on your living room bookshelf, Mark Bittman's newest release, How to Cook Everything The Basics: All You Need to Make Great Food, stays in the kitchen.

The book — a collection of 185 classic recipes along with instructions for fundamental techniques — is a refresher for seasoned cooks and a confidence-boosting bible for newbies in the kitchen. With 1,000 step-by-step photographs, it's the next best thing to having mom watch over you as you boil a pot of pasta for the first time.

Why did you want to publish The Basics?
It goes back 12 years, actually, to the publication of the original How to Cook Everything, when there were three complaints. One — which is very amusing — is it doesn't have a recipe for chicken pot pie. Then the more serious complaints were that it was overwhelming and some beginners did not like it.

What's your game plan when grocery shopping?
I go to the produce section and buy everything that looks good. And then I keep a really well stocked pantry. I want people to say, 'I'm going to the store to buy what looks good, and then I'm going to come home and there's a cookbook I can look at that's going to tell me what to do with the stuff I just bought.' And that's How to Cook Everything. And hopefully Mark Bittman tells you what to do with it.

What do you say to people who are afraid to cook?
People are afraid to drive also, but everyone eventually gets in a car and drives. No one drives well the first time. And very few people are going to cook well the first time. It means you need to be willing to make mistakes, and there's a level of maturity that indicates. You have to say, 'I have to go through a learning curve on this.'

What appliances do you recommend for small spaces?
An appliance that I think is worth getting is a food processor, because I think it's really useful. Blenders are less important, but are nice to have. I think little gadgets are much more important: a set of three or four really good knives, a good vegetable peeler, a cheap mandoline, and a grater, like a microplane, for Parmesan. I don't have much more than that.

NHL. New Jersey looks to settle nerves while L.A. hopes to bring more energy for Game 2 of cup final

The New Jersey Devils played poorly and almost won.

Coach Peter DeBoer's team looked to turn that into a positive following Wednesday's 2-1 overtime loss to the Los Angeles Kings in Game 1 of the Stanley Cup final. The Devils overcame a slow start to send the game into overtime, only to see Kings star Anze Kopitar decide the affair on a breakaway. Thursday was a light day for both teams, with Game 2 not until Saturday.

After the loss, the Devils were all reading from the same page.

"Not playing our best game and still having a chance to win, that makes us feel pretty good that we can play better and be a little more successful," said forward Travis Zajac.

Forward Ryan Carter added, "We had our chances in that game. Outplayed or not, poor execution or not, we had our chance to win that game. We've got to look into that, stay positive, and try to find a way to win the next one."

Added DeBoer: "We got a chance to get into overtime in the first game with a chance to win."

Unfortunately for the Devils, the Kings also say they have more to bring.

"We played all right. I think it's different adjusting to a new team, adjusting to a different building here," said defenceman Matt Greene. "But we've got to play better if we want to give ourselves a chance to win another game this series."

"I think we can be better," said Kings captain Dustin Brown. "At the end of the day we found a way to win."

Kings coach Darryl Sutter said a lot of his players said they felt sluggish Wednesday.

"I thought we had some nervous players," he said. "Our guys felt they can play better. That's a good thing. And I'm sure the other team is saying the same thing too."

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You will surprise people today with your reasonable behaviour.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Focus on what you enjoy and don't worry about whether it is an efficient use of your time and energy.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. With both Venus and Mercury moving through your sign you will know instinctively what is the right thing to do.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You have so much to look forward to. So why the glum face? By the middle of next week you'll be smiling again.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Relationships will be a lot of fun over the next few days.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You will charm everyone you meet today – and if you meet important people such as employers and senior colleagues you could even earn yourself a pay rise or a promotion, or both.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. You only have to put a name to your desires to see them fulfilled.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. A positive link between mind planet Mercury and Venus, planet of harmony, will bring a respite from your worries and woes.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Relationships will be pleasant today, which is a huge relief after the ups and downs of recent weeks.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. If you are having problems, don't suffer in silence: let those around you know you need assistance.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Use your powers of communication to let others know why you are unhappy with certain situations. But don't talk down to them or blame them for the mess.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Set aside a fixed time for your work and a fixed time for having fun. It does not have to be one or the other: if you plan things sensibly you can have your cake and eat it too.
